1. A so-called "plenary" session of the Cominform was held at Lake Snagov, a summer resort near Bucharest, during the period 15-25 November 1950. Unusual security precautions were put into force for these meetings. Chauffeurs assigned to officials participating in the meetings were not permitted off duty for the entire ten-day period. As special compensation they were given double their monthly salary, two suits of clothes, two pairs of shoes and special food ration tickets for a three-month period.
2. These chauffeurs were warned not to mention the meetings. One official declared, "I do not want to hear our enemies broadcast any news about these meetings."
